

Hosting, handover and ongoing support

Prepared for Kirti Moholkar · 19 September 2026

Kirti — answers to your four questions in one place, plus what I propose for the ongoing work.

1 Render: what you're paying now, and after the move to ClinWell

You aren't paying Render anything at the moment. Both the preview site and the database sit on Render's free tier. Once the code moves to the ClinWell server there'll be no Render bill either — we simply shut the Render services down after the migration is verified, and that's the end of it.

The thing worth knowing is the opposite of what you asked about. Free isn't safe: Render deletes free Postgres databases 30 days after they're created. That database holds everything we've built — 2,403 listings, 2,416 mapped clinic locations across 186 cities, the full specialty taxonomy and all the treatment and condition links. If it expired before the migration, that work would be gone.

Handled. I took a complete backup of the live database on 19 September — schema, data, indexes and all. It restores onto the ClinWell server with a single command, so the migration no longer depends on Render staying up, and I'll refresh it as we go.

2 The membership page

It's here: <https://tls-preview.onrender.com/pricing> — you'll need the preview password to get in, the same one you've been using.

One thing before you try to buy: payments on the preview are still simulated, so the page will take you through the flow but won't charge anything or create a real subscription. Live payment processing is one of the items I'll wire up as part of the launch, once we've settled which processor you want to use. Have a look at the tiers and the wording now and tell me what you'd change — that's the useful thing to do at this stage.

3 Before launch: the site can't send email yet

Flagging this early because it sits directly under your "send individual emails" request. Email sending isn't configured on the site at all today — nothing goes out, not to members and not to specialists. Setting it up means choosing a sending provider and adding the right DNS records to toplocalspecialists.com so that messages land in inboxes rather than spam folders.

That's a pre-launch setup job rather than maintenance, and I'll fold it into the delivery work at no extra cost. I need one thing from you: access to wherever the DNS for toplocalspecialists.com is managed, or an introduction to whoever controls it.

The blog side of your request is different — that's already built and working. Once you're live you can publish posts yourself, and I'll show you how in the handover.

4 Ongoing maintenance — monthly retainer

For the ongoing help you described, a monthly retainer is the cleanest arrangement. It gives you a standing claim on my time rather than a quote and a wait every time something needs doing.

$200 per month

INCLUDED	WHAT THAT MEANS IN PRACTICE
Monitoring and uptime	I watch the site and the database and deal with anything that breaks, whether or not you've noticed it.
Weekly database backups	Kept off the server, restorable on demand — the same kind of backup I took this week.
Blog posts published	Any number — send me the copy and I'll format it and put it live. No monthly cap.
Email sends	Member and specialist emails set up and sent, once the sending provider is live.
Fixes and changes	Bugs, broken listings, wording, images and layout — as they come up.
New sections and redesigns	A new page or section, or a redesign of one that exists, is covered. I work through them one at a time in the order you ask for them.
Response time	Two working days for anything normal, same day if the site is down.

Not included: integrations with outside systems — a booking platform, a CRM, a payment provider beyond the one we launch with — and anything that needs a new platform standing behind it. I'll quote those separately before starting so there are no surprises. Third-party costs such as hosting, the email provider and any paid APIs are billed to you directly at cost.

Billed monthly in advance, starting the month after go-live. Either of us can end it with a month's notice, and everything stays yours — code, database, accounts.

5 What I need from you

- Access to the DNS for toplocalspecialists.com, so email sending can be set up.
- Your view on the membership tiers and pricing wording at /pricing.
- Confirmation that the $200 retainer works for you, so I can put it in place for the month after launch.

Happy to talk any of this through on a call if that's easier.

Best,
Hacim
